LITTLE JOURNEYS INTO FASHION LAND

There is nothing more crisp and cool and wholly suitable for the summer tailor than linen. The war, which has served as an excuse, legitimate or otherwise, for the boosting of prices, and against which has been charged a good deal of fabric shortage, has affected, to some extent, the linen supply, but it is difficult to believe that the shortage is serious when one views the attractive garments the shops are showing.

Norfolk and other belted coats, as well as suits showing the flaring pep-with the smart London woman, because it was in her home that the 5 o'clock tea hour originated. One cannot go far enough back into social history to remember when it was not the custom for Englishwomen in all degrees of society to serve tea in their own homes at that hour.

The smart American women in the east represented the first class of society to take up this form of hospitality in America, and it has taken twenty years for the fashion to filter through the continent. Even now, there are whole sections of the country and whole segments of society that would look upon the service of 5 o'clock tea with its muffins and jam, its sandwiches and small cakes, as a ridiculous wastage of time and money, and an aiming toward social manners that could not be contained.

In France, the 5 o'clock tea, which is deliciously pronounced by the French mouth, has been taken up only in the last half dozen years, and no one indulges in it but the Parisiennes who endeavor to be English in a number of things, and the vast colony of Americans coming and going, who meet at the 5 o'clock hour in hotels and restaurants for tea and talk.

The custom has not spread through any other part of France or Europe, so it remains that the tea gown is still held, in the opinions of designers, as a peculiarly British institution. It is quite fitting, therefore, that London should send over fascinating swirls of chiffon and embroidery, charmeuse and beading, that are held out as a temptation to the woman who wants to look her best in her own rooms before a tea table.

Appear Like Dinner Gowns.

Time was when the tea gown swept the floor, and in the judgment of many, it should retain this classic characteristic. It is never so lovely as when made in straight folds of satin that lap the floor and half reveal the slippered foot, with the shoulders slightly covered with a bit of satin and with a swinging cape or coat or drapery of some kind made of diaphanous fabric and probably loaded with oriental handwork.

However, today many of the best English tea gowns that have arrived are of this variety. It appears like a dinner gown and there is no doubt that it could be used in this service. There is a wide satin foundation with a batimented skirt—a kind of hem that Americans have not used as much as Europeans. The overdress is of imitation. It is of straw-colored mouseline embroidered in large scrolls of silver, the upper front fashioned like a zouave jacket, cut to show the satin foundation and fastened at the bust with a silver rose.

SOME TIMELY HINTS ON JUNE FASHIONS

Raspberry-colored net is made up in a charming frock over cream-colored muslin.

A row of black buttons from hem to throat is the feature of some of the new frocks.

Net overskirts are sometimes edged with inch-wide velvet ribbon, in black, for a finish.

Picot edged ribbon is used for belts and girdles on thin muslin frocks.

An attractive cuff to a long-sleeved silk frock is formed of four-inch pleated georgette crepe, flaring above the wrist, with the part of the pleating that is stitched into the binding toward the hand.

Leather belts are used on some of the wash frocks, especially those for seaside mornings.

Swift & Company's Sales of Beef in Washington, D. C., for the week ending Saturday, June 10, averaged as follows: Domestic beef, 13.27 cents per pound.—Advertisement.

SUMMER TAILLEUR OF WHITE LINEN CRASH.

Lined and fitted or semi-fitted jackets, are developed in linen, and it is also found desirable for riding suits.

The suit here illustrated is made of heavy white linen crash. The collar and cuffs are detachable and are made of black satin.

The buttonholes are not worked in the usual way with thread, but are buttoned or piped with a thinner linen, and this treatment is found a very desirable one with most of the heavy suits or dresses of tub fabrics, as a buttonhole so finished gives much better service and keeps its shape better than when worked with thread.

In making the coat of any linen suit it should have a lining extending below the shoulders, so as to strengthen and hold the garment in shape, and also to prevent any "pulling" where the sleeve fastens in.

The coat illustrated has a circular skirt topped with a yoke that is cut four and a half inches deep front and back, and which points to a depth of six inches at the sides. A left side fastening is used, with invisible snap hooks securing the garment.

To make the suit, seven yards of linen, thirty-six inches wide, and five-eighths of a yard of satin for collar and cuffs, are required.

The jacket has two generous, slant-wise pockets.

Among the attractive linen suits recently noted, one showed a skirt of natural color linen, accompanied by a cutaway coat of black and white checked linen. Another plain linen skirt was topped by a peasant blouse of Chippendale print.

ARTISTIC TEA GOWNS FROM ENGLAND

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

Correspondence of the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 10.—The house of Pam in London has sent to America through our buyers some remarkably lovely specimens of tea gowns.

It is said that this form of indoor afternoon robe is peculiarly English.

GOWN OF STRAWBERRY COLORED MOUSLINE WITH DRAPERY EMBROIDERED IN SILVER OVER WHITE SATIN.

but it is a well known fact that the Frenchwomen wear such gowns with amazing skill and that the French designers, especially Fremont and Calot, accomplished alluring things to be worn at the 5 o'clock hour.

Books for the Summer.

FOR GRADUATION PRESENTS, FOR TRAVELERS AND FOR ALL WHO LOVE TO READ.

"To give a book is to enrich the receiver permanently; to put into his or her possession something which leaves a residuum of pleasure long after the particular day on which it was received has been forgotten."—Hamilton W. Mabie.

UNDER THE APPLE TREES, by John Burroughs. Varied essays on biology, philosophy and literature; on California nature and the winter birds of Georgia. Price, $1.25.

OLD AGE—ITS CAUSE AND PREVENTION, by Sanford Bennett, the man who grew young at seventy. A remarkable contribution to health-building literature and especially valuable because it has been written in a practical manner by a practical man; based on experience. $1.50.

BODY AND SPIRIT, by John D. Quackenbush, A. M., M. D. This book on the subject of psychotherapy is written by a well known physician, who proves his theory of the value of suggestion as a curative force from numerous cases observed in his own practice. $1.50.

A MASTER BUILDER, by Charles H. Brent. Being the life and letters of Henry Yates Satterlee, first Bishop of Washington. With portrait. $4.00.

SAMUEL W. McCALL, by Laurence B. Evans. Tells of the early life and long service of the Governor of Massachusetts. With portraits. $1.25.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS, by Joseph Bucklin Bishop. A history of American conventions, national campaigns, inaugurations and campaign caricature. Illustrated. $1.50.

UNDER THE COUNTRY SKY, by Grace S. Richmond. The story of a warm-hearted country girl, who is old-fashioned enough to believe in home and to look on love as the gleam to follow through life. $1.25.

THE BORDER LEGION, by Zane Grey. The lust of gold, the lawless spirit of the border half a century ago, a woman who drove a man to the devil, and then won him back by her love—here is the theme, the setting and the heroine of Zane Grey's new novel. $1.25.

MISTER 44—A Novel of the North Woods, by E. J. Rath. Here is a story of the outdoors, so rich in tenderness and reality that no one can afford to pass it by unread. It is brimming with quaint and amusing situations. $1.25.

SILVER SANDS, by Clinton H. Stagg—new type of detective story. Thornley Colton, the blind problemist, makes himself the master of all mysteries. He declares that the criminal plans only to elude detection by searching eyes, leaving a plain trail to him who has no eyes, but a mind to reason and finger tips to touch. $1.25.
